

Icons2Go.US
tel:321-Liftoff (+1 321 543 8633)
mailto:Ozzie@icons2go.us

There are some other things we'd be happy to discuss about this topic. Just phone us up by dialing: 321-Liftoff

When someone thinks your web page is important enough to put on the Home Screen of their mobile phone, The FavIcon will be the Identifying image of your page on their phone. And that is a good reason why a FavIcon is so important.

the web browsers themselves will do the rest. it in the directory where your website's index page resides.

Once I have a FavIcon image, I put the file into the main directory of my website. There it is. The Secret. The way to put an icon on your site. Simply name an image favicon.ico (it should be a bitmap formatted image) and place

So look around, get ideas. follow links to icon sources (there's no disgrace in buying an appropriate icon from a commercial source). I bought the Rocket Ship on IconFind-er.Com, for SpaceLaunchInfo.Com and I don't have to contend with the otherwise sticky copyright issues when my icon is considered a "Work For Hire".

For my own personal webspace, SpaceIdeas.Com, I hand drew a logo lightbulb, scanned it into the computer, and using Paint, cut out 1/4 of it to use as the Icon. It shows enough of my trademark to recognize it if you've seen it on my page, but the full image does not shrink well enough to be recognized if made the size of an Icon by itself.

If your company has a logo Trademark, it seems obvious that my's Icon. if your company's trade- mark is made up of words in a particular font, perhaps the Initials (in that font), would make a good Icon.

Bring up a web page on your favorite Browser, and look above the page. On most modern browsers, you'll find a Tab containing 1) the Title of the web page, and 2) a small image or Icon that represents the website you're viewing. On my web site, my Icon represents an old Palm Treo smartphone. I created the image myself in Microsoft Paint. It's the Icon for my website PhonePHriendly.Com and since smartphones are a major reason to have an Icon for a website (I'll explain more on this later) it seems appropriate to use here.

Why you need a FavIcon on your website

$1.00

Why your website needs a FavIcon

Version 2017-02-25

Icons2Go.US
2323 S Washington Ave
Titusville FL
USA 32780

(321) Liftoff
+1 321 543 8633

Get Launch Status on your Mobile Phone Browser

Come on out to Space View Park in Titusville FL to watch launches from the Canaveral Spaceport.

While waiting for the launch, you'll want to check Launch Status by visiting:

<http://LaunchInfo.Com>

Tap the button marked 1 for the latest status report.

<http://SpaceViewPark.Com>

The front row of the balcony for a rocket launch

This booklet is a service of Spaceideas.Com
Robert Osband, Computerist
Ozzie@Spaceideas.Com
Dial: 321-Liftoff
+1 321 543 8633

QRcode for the
The Orlando City
Soccer Club
match schedule